JBC slams SC over CJ case

Says decision on GMA midnight appointments 'premature'

By Don Z. Pazzinogian

ASSERTING ITS INDEPENDENCE, THE Judicial and Bar Council (JBC) has assailed the Supreme Court's March 17 ruling authorizing President Macapagal-Arroyo to appoint the next Chief Justice even during the constitutional ban on midnight appointments.

In a pointed comment submitted on April 12, the collegial body chaired by Chief Justice Reynato Puno said the high court's decision had dismissed the petition that would have the President—whose term ends on June 30—appoint Puno's successor after the May 10 elections.

The JBC said the petition was "prematurely premature" because it had not yet decided whether it would select in Mr. Arroyo's short list of nominees for the successor of Puno, who retires on May 17.

It said it would have wanted to consult with constitutional experts whether the incumbent President could appoint a Chief Justice in view of the constitutional prohibition against midnight appointments, and Section 9 Article VIII mandating the appointment to vacancies in the judiciary within 90 days, and the election law on appointment.

Puno, the resident constitutional expert in the high court, had withdrawn himself from the delibera-

Labor-Group (LGR) standard-bearer Gilbert "Gibo" Troncos has rejected a supposed offer from the Liberal Party that he drop out of the presidential race and support the LP candidate Sen. Benigno "Noynoy" Aquino Jr. in exchange for a Cabinet post.

"He (Troncos) finds no rhyme or reason to withdraw from the race. Being the people's candidate, he has to finish and win this term," said Troncos's spokesperson Mike Tolado.

LP leaders are said to have made the offer to Troncos after two of the ruling coalition's big guns, Atty. Gen. Jose Salonga and Mandaya Party Negros Governor Ed, crossed to their camp.

THE MAY 10 POLLS WILL BE the Philippines' "best election" in history, despite criticisms and fears that the poll exercise is flawed for failure that could plunge the country into instability, the Commission on Elections and Senate-run TSM Corp. said yesterday.

Clear choice, spokesperson for Senate-run TSM, the supplier of the automated election system, said the company is committed to conducting an electronic balloting in the Philippines that promises "fast, accurate and reliable" votes, a far cry from the old, slow manual system.

"This will be the best election in the history of the Philippines. It won't be perfect but it will be the best," he said.

"If you believe the theories, we're screwed. But it is happening, we're going to have elections. It will be electronic, it will be accurate, and it will be undeniable," he said.

MVP quits Ateneo board for good

By Dorian L. Lucas

THEODORE MANUEL V. INAGILAN submitted yesterday his "irrevocable resignation" as chair of the Ateneo de Manila University's board of trustees, according to a statement issued by the school.

At the same time, the philatelist and sports patron also gave up the honorary doctorate that the university conferred on him last year, in an effort to end the controversy triggered by his recent graduation speeches at the Ateneo, portions of which were found to have been lifted from commencement addresses of previous foreign presidents.

Biggest airport shutdown since World War II

LONDON—AN ENORMOUS ash cloud from a massive Icelandic volcano spread over half of Europe and stranded travelers on six continents on Friday, Europe's biggest air travel shutdown since World War II.

The cloud, floating as high as 11 kilometers above Earth and capable of blanketing out jet engines, wrecked travel plans for tens of thousands of people, from tourists and business travelers to pilgrims and rebels. They couldn't see the source of their frustration—except satellites, when the ash spread over red and lavender tundra.

Airlines across the Asia-Pacific region scrambled to reschedule or cancel flights. One flight from Manila to Amsterdam, EL 804 of KLM Royal Dutch Airlines, was canceled, stranding around 400 passengers.

120 drugstores, hospitals face fines for cheap meds violations

By Jerry E. Espinosa

MORE THAN 120 DRUGSTORES and hospital pharmacies nationwide are facing fines of up to P50,000 after they were found to have violated the minimum drug retail price (MDRP) program.

Seventy-eight of the erring firms, which the Department of Health did not identify, are from Metro Manila while the rest come from other parts of the country.

Additional fines of up to P5 million and suspension, if not revocation of the violators' business licenses, will be imposed by the government against those found to have repeatedly violated the MDRP or DOR system.

The penalties are provided for in Republic Act 10352, or the Cheaper Medicines Act of 2009, which allows the DOH to impose the MDRP if market competition fails to bring down the cost of drugs.

The DOH believes that trade monopoly is the main reason behind the high price of medicines in the country.

Health Secretary Esperanza Calant warned the government "will not hesitate to prosecute any drugstore or pharmacy should they continue to defy the implementation of the MDRP."

Calant said drug retail outlets had no excuse not to reduce their price since drug manufacturers that have joined the cheaper medicines program are already selling more than 200 types of drugs and health care products covered by MDRP to hospitals and pharmacies at below-cost prices.

Dr. Fabian Lando Sr., program manager of the National Center for Pharmaceutical Access and Management, earlier said about 60 percent of some 40,000 drugstores and hospital pharmacies all over the country had complied with the provisions of RA 10352.

The MDRP was signed last August, mandating a 50 percent reduction on the maximal medicines under prices from 1994 onward, drug firms agreed to cut by half the price of 36 other medicines.

Poll results start coming out by 6 p.m.—Comelec

By Kristine L. Nolas

THE COMMISSION ON ELECTORAL DISPUTES is monitoring voting on an online system where the public can access the consolidated results of the May 10 elections as soon as they come in after polling ends at 6 p.m. Comelec spokesperson James Abaya said the poll body is looking at several options to disseminate official and partial results of the national elections. One idea is to set up a page on the election results website that will be created by Information Technology Corp., the Comelec's national elections supplier, he said. "The election results website will contain precise results. We might append a page to the website showing the latest consolidated results," he said. Abaya said the second election website that will be accessed a day before the elections will contain the results from all the 76,000 polling precincts in the country. The Comelec and Statistics Bureau will establish server sites to allow more people to access it, he said. The Comelec will also gradually announce the results in the media through the Board of Commissioners at the Philippine International Convention Center, where Comelec and Statistics Bureau officials will be monitoring the election. A development is to allow the keyholders to access the results. "There is no lag of time days," he said. The arrival of the computers at the municipal, provincial and national levels will be speeded immediately at the end of the voting day at 6 p.m. to give the results to come in, he said. In the CEC, Comelec officials said they will not open the results to the public until the results are confirmed. They will only release the results to the public after the results are confirmed.

to hold manual elections in urban areas while ensuring that computerized elections are held in rural areas. Agape's progress In a press conference in Lucena, Quezon, Agape said that if the Comelec has a clear plan to hold manual elections, he should be able to win votes where the candidates are more accessible and where there are more eyes monitoring the process. The rural elections should be announced as soon as the process is done, he said. UP assistant professor Ralph Sison said the Comelec should conduct a parallel count on the basis of the manual election, to dispel any allegations of fraud or manipulation, he said. PHILIPPINE BAR COUNCIL

JBC slams Supreme Court over Chief Justice case

By Kristine L. Nolas

THE JBC, also called the Supreme Court that it was composed of constitutional bodies when it declared in its 5-1 ruling written by Associate Justice Lucio Bersamin that Mr. Arroyo could appoint Pinar's successor even without a court order from the JBC "is an intrusion," it said. "There the JBC has yet to decide the issue at that time, it is submitted that the present constitutional position and administrative act are not yet settled and should have been decided by the JBC," it said. "Thus, it is submitted, the JBC may not wish to be the party to the controversy of the (March 17) decision on this particular ground."

Just one vote Of the eight JBC members, only voting Justice Secretary Alfredo Aguiro did not join the motion signed by Chief of Court Lucio Bersamin as an official JBC member.

At a committee meeting, Aguiro said he had a separate concern about the high court to state that the President could fill all vacancies in the judiciary and not just in the high court, during her last term in office. He said the JBC was not an institution.

The six official JBC members are Pinar, Aguiro, and then, Francisco Escudero and Quinsigao City Rep. Maria Leticia, the chair of the Senate and House committees on justice respectively.

The two regular JBC members also appointed by the Arroyo are retired Supreme Court Justice Reginald Hermosura Jr., University of the State law dean, and retired Supreme Court Justice (in the weekend), former head of the Philippine (SOP) representative, Conrado Garcia, and retired Supreme Court Justice Antonio Santiago Lapanan (the private sector).

In an interview, Aguiro said he did not know that the JBC had filed its motion. He said that at their last meeting on April 1, the JBC members discussed the March 17 ruling largely but he did not agree to "reopen and follow (it) and accept the independence of the JBC pursuant to the Constitution and our own rules."

"I just want you to know," he said. Aguiro said the public interview of candidates for Chief Justice would pass through as scheduled on April 27 and 28 in Baguio City. He said he did not know if the incoming high court members announced for the post would appoint.

"We'll know by Monday how many members we have. We need a minimum five members. We can continue if there are only one or two," Aguiro said.

Still it is not The JBC took "strong exception" to a statement in the high court's ruling that would doubt whether "in extreme cases" the JBC has the authority to fill the vacancy due to a Chief Justice if the appointee is an incumbent justice in the high court.

"These statements are levels of an unconstitutional and legal basis and impinge on the independence of the JBC in choosing the powers to appoint the President," it said.

"These statements however are clearly false (as an act) as the decision is not a statement that the question is not currently before us at the moment," it is respectfully submitted that such statements are clearly spurious and prejudicial to the public interest and the decision is not a statement that the question is not currently before us at the moment."

PUNING—resisters constitutional report of the Supreme Court public," it said. The JBC, however, reiterated that it would "stick to the final decision" of the high court. "But in a second with the JBC's own constitutional intention and to live with its implementation rules and regulations," it said.

How they voted The March 17 ruling passed the vote for Mr. Arroyo to choose who will head the Supreme Court during her second term, and it was a vote for the alleged case. (Arroyo said during her last term in office.)

Some of the 13 justices mentioned that the JBC could appoint a new Chief Justice, in effect reversing a 1999 unanimous ruling of the court on the independence and stability clause—that no outgoing president could appoint a successor in the judiciary during the last term of his or her term.

Five justices claimed that Mr. Arroyo could continue to fill all vacancies in the judiciary. Four justices opposed the JBC's motion.

Only Associate Justice Conchita Carpio Morales dissented. Associate Justice Pres. Benigno Aquino and Associate Justice, a constitutional expert, said the case was premature.

Like Pinar, the two most vocal members and top members for the case, Associate Justice Antonio Carpio and Justice Escudero, withdrew themselves.

Carpio and Morales, who maintain that Mr. Arroyo cannot appoint the new Chief Justice, have warned the JBC that they no longer wished to be continued.

The other candidates for the posts are Cecilia, Associate Justice Theresita Leonor de la Cruz and Antonio Briones, and writing Associate Justice Presiding Justice Hilario Davide Jr.

Protests A group of protesters from various sectors had planned the rally with video taping that the high court was moving toward Mr. Arroyo's victory.

Early this month, the Philippine Bar Association said the high court did not have the authority to appoint the President. It is basing its position on the basis of the decision, "except for temporary appointments in vacancies or positions where continued vacancies threaten with public service or emergency public safety."

Two chapters of the BPB expressed its views. Southern Luzon Governor Amado L. Tordesillas Jr. and General House Speaker Roldo Tordesillas also filed a joint motion for reconsideration of the ruling. PHILIPPINE BAR COUNCIL

Cloudy this weekend

By Alain Puga

THE COUNTRY CAN EXPECT SOME cloudiness and maybe some rain that could alleviate the summer heat over the weekend, as the Philippine Atmospheric, Geophysical and Astronomical Services Administration (PAGASA) said yesterday.

In another forecast, the agency said a cold front affecting Northern Luzon while no weather alerts in affecting Visayas and Mindanao.

At a recent Northern Luzon visit, reports mostly cloudy skies with scattered light rain.

On the other hand, Visayas and Mindanao may also report mostly cloudy skies with scattered rain showers and drizzle.

The rest of the country will be partly cloudy to cloudy with isolated rain showers or drizzle.

Mean Manila sea report partly cloudy to a few cloudy skies with isolated rain showers. Maximum temperatures can range from 25 to 28 degrees Celsius. Rain conditions will be seen partly cloudy skies after the weekend.

Major cities on the week like the cities of Quezon City, Lungsod ng Baguio as well as Iloilo and Singapore City will have scattered rain showers and drizzle, while the rest of the country are expected to clear after the weekend.

Lungsod City will have some cloudy weather with isolated rain showers and drizzle, while the rest of the country are expected to clear after the weekend. The same conditions will prevail over Iloilo City, Manila, Cebu, Zamboanga City, Cagayan de Oro City, Marikina and Zamboanga City.

BARRAMEDA CASE

Family
pushes for state
witness

By Beverly T. Natividad

THE FAMILY OF MURDER VICTIM Ruby Rose Barrameda-Jimenez is pushing for a motion to use Manuel Monero, one of the accused, as a primary witness in the case.

The Barrameda family together with the petition of Justice state prosecutors, and Monero himself, have asked Judge Hector Alegria, of Mindanao Region 10 Regional Trial Court Branch 170, to reconsider a decision denying Monero's application to be a state witness.

Monero, who had posted the location of Barrameda-Jimenez's corpse to police in June 2009, is currently on trial as one of the accused in the case.

Barrameda-Jimenez's relatives said his testimony was necessary so he was "the only person willing to testify and give justice to the family of the deceased."

But in a March 18 order, Alegria said

Poetry goes on tour via electric jeepneys

By Tina G. Santos

HUNDREDS OF ELECTRIC-POWERED jeepneys playing the strains of Manila City are in for a "poetry" ride.

Brightly painted, e-jeepneys, carrying poems of poets written in Spanish and Filipino, and decorated with colorful pinoyera, will make its way around the country's 8-armed capital starting next week.

To make things easier for those who do not understand Spanish, a Filipino translation of the poems will be posted alongside the Spanish version.

The project, dubbed "Shine sa Muna (Shine in the Muna) Jeepney Poetry Tour," is actually an extension of last year's Cavendish de Manila's innovative campaign that aims to encourage reading among Filipino commuters.

The Spanish cultural center in Manila started its exciting literary tour in 2007 when it made its presence felt in the three urban rail transportation systems of Metro Manila—Light Rail Transit 1 and 2 and the Shina Rail Transit.

"The jeepney poetry could possibly be the next step in spreading the joy of Spanish and Filipino poetry," said last year's Cavendish de Manila director Jose Rodriguez. "With the combination of our Spanish language, the Filipinos love the poetry and the ubiquitous jeepney, this poetry tour is a real innovation and a true creation of culture."

He added that the project will hopefully give a whole new meaning to riding the jeepney.

"With every journey, the people's homes are filled with emotions evoked by the words of great poets," Rodriguez said. "Not only would this keep the passengers from getting bored,

Bulalo

— festive Sunday dish

By Rand C. Perez

A traditional dish that promotes family bonding, Bulalo is an example of good Filipino cooking.

Bulalo is a classic Filipino beef stew, a sumptuous mix of beef boiled until soft and tender to produce a flavorful broth. Vegetables like Bayam, beans, cabbage, peachy potatoes, salsa tomana and corn in a can render goodness to the soup spiced with cracked peppercorns. Tag it off the rice cooker from the stove, tag it in pots spiced with calamansi and crushed kalamansi leaves for a full, symphony meal.

The good flavor of bulalo depends on the kind of beef used. Story starts the thigh, knee cap and shoulder bones are boiled for long hours to produce gelatinous meat. Photo, relations practitioner and an collector Louie Cruz calls bulalo the "Sunday dish." The instructor sure loves his all, you'll even realize his home for a gallery with all five sets art photos by Filipino masters all over the place from the walls to the floor, and he's big on Filipino cooking, too. He teaches the bulalo.

"It is a festive dish that symbolizes breaking bread with family. The bulalo is a traditional family dish meant to be," he says in a recent interview in his studio home. "It symbolizes family."

Cruz enjoys entertaining friends and family and he usually serves them bulalo because it is easy to make and well-loved by many.

"It only takes three steps to cook bulalo: boil the beef, simmer with the broth and add the vegetables. I like using the hot, short ribs and also parts. My version is different because I add the meat first. First, you chop onions, sauté it, brown the beef a little so the juices come out, add water, salt and pepper and vegetables," he says. "I use pressure cooker to cook the joints faster."

"You have leftovers, Cruz suggests making it into chicken." All of the sauce, with some olive oil, add beef, tomato and salsa to make.

Cruz serves bulalo every Sunday to his family with beef bangus or pork chop, or fresh shrimp. He suggests serving it even during hot weather.

"The soup keeps the joints and cools down the body," he says.

Bulalo is one of the featured Filipino dishes in the "Soco Pinoy" campaign, a program of Unilever Foundation (UPF), Philippine Daily Inquirer and Department of Tourism that aims to promote local cuisine and encourage Filipinos to use modern ingredients in their traditional dishes. One from Beef Bone, the first bulalo to be the first to

Bulalo by the region

The province of Benguet is particularly known for the bulalo. When the Benguet "Teaching the Town about 30 kilometers south of Manila, the gate to Benguet province, motorists can't simply head the way to stop at the roadside but regular food stop and watch the legendary Rice and Onion's bulalo.

For a warm and inviting, the taste of hot, salty, slightly sweet, spicy and tangy flavor of bulalo broth that goes straight down your throat, warm up the cold weather, heat up the food body and bring out perspiration makes one feel more alive.

And the tender meat comes in a bowl.

The home market? "It's Christmas in paradise, it could be the taste, or maybe the living." (There's money in bulalo), Philippine Daily Inquirer, Feb. 10, 2008.

For years now, Rice and Onion have served motorists going north and south with newly cooked, well prepared comfort food, initially opening along the Calamba, Santa-Tomas highway, the route has set up branches in many neighboring towns. The one we visited is in Sta. Rosa. The chain has the coverage for traditional Filipino dishes.

Order the specialty bulalo, either plain or with vegetables garnish, basically. There's a P30 difference in price ("The Quiet Line," Inquirer, June 25, 2008).

Good bulalo can also be had in Luster's in Taguig and other bulalo houses. Here in Sta. Rosa, the house on Highway Road in Baguio, a bowl of bulalo comes with unlimited soup refill, perfect to keep you warm in such a cold city.

There's also Luster's, the Visayan version of the famous bulalo, the difference lies in using a cooking agent like kalamansi or lemon, new tonight, lemon-glass and cheese for taste.

Bulalo as Soco Pinoy dish

Cruz believes bulalo should not be the ultimate Filipino dish because it's a traditional dish that promotes family bonding and an example of good Filipino cooking.

"It has soup, it has beef, veggies, and the rich broth is something. It is easy to do and it gathers people on a table, giving families time to talk and meal up especially on weekends," he says.

If he's not cooking bulalo, Cruz says he usually makes for longganisa and tapa.

THE NATIONAL SEARCH FOR THE ULTIMATE Pinoy dish

"I love longganisa from the province. Vigan's garlic longganisa, Bacolod's smother longganisa, the famous from Iloilo. I also cook Iloilo-style tapa which is perfect with longganisa," he says.

He uses River Liquid Seasoning on the rice to add flavor and says it is "tasting especially when out of the country and craving for something Pinoy."

"Soco Pinoy" also introduces some new products from Unilever Foundation: from Bangko Bangko Mera, good a new line to grill meat, from Diner Panned Steak, a sensory event held for people center and on-the-go, and from Lita, Powder, a modern and more convenient alternative to calamansi.

Watch out if bulalo will win as the ultimate Pinoy dish in the 2009 competition, awarded on April 28, 5 p.m. in SMO Function Room 3 in Pasay. Parties are samples of the Philippines' top local dishes from the best restaurants all over the country, and have until now for it. It's a famous famous white bowl with beef and corn, too.

Soco Pinoy personally "Soco Pinoy" and Unilever Foundation will also be looking for the best Pinoy dish, and guests will find out which among the dishes got the most number of votes from the Soco Pinoy online and text polls. There will also be an awarding of the country's top restaurants that have been picked as the having the best Soco Pinoy dishes. Other activities include a special award for Pinoy food food chain, Jollibee and the launch of the Unilever Foundation Food Tip book which offers readers a chance to take a gastronomic journey to Philippines' well-loved dishes.

SEOUL—SOUTH KOREAN INVESTIGATORS said on Friday that an external blast was the most likely cause of the sinking of a South Korean warship near the disputed North Korean border three weeks ago.

"The possibility of an external explosion is the highest, that of an internal explosion," said a senior investigator, Kim Tae-ho, the chief of a state investigation team, said at a news conference on Friday.

A total of 46 sailors lost their lives in the March 26 sinking, the deadliest maritime naval tragedy for South Korea. Seoul has not yet accused Pyongyang of involvement in the incident but said it was a "serious" violation.

Woon, an independent scientist on the military's civilian investigation team, said his assessment was based on an initial marine probe launched on Thursday after the Korean navy's 1,200-ton corvette was launched.

Defense Minister Kim Tan-Woong, who has said it is possible that a mine or torpedo may have hit the Cheonan, said the government is looking at the sinking as "a grave national security incident."

A grainy footage from Thursday showed the sinking of the Cheonan which sank in the Yellow Sea last month by what sources described as a "big external explosion."

South Korea has launched an international investigation into the disaster to ensure the crew and military officials are not implicated.

Military officials said 36 bodies have been found in the Cheonan but have found none of the alleged mine, after new bodies were recovered earlier in the month. A total of 50 crewmen were rescued soon after the sinking.

UN: Bhutto murder could have been prevented

SEOUL 17 (AP)—Pakistan authorities could have prevented the 2007 murder of ex-prime minister Benazir Bhutto and deliberately failed to properly investigate her death, a UN-appointed independent panel says. "The Bhutto assassination could have been prevented if security measures had been taken," said a report by a three-member panel headed by Chile's UN ambassador Ricardo Muñoz on Thursday. The panel, headed by establishing recommendations of the killing, said it believed that Pakistan's failure to probe the slaying effectively "misdelivered." "These efforts, in past investigations agencies involvement, were critical of four agencies, they might have taken action, which they knew, as professionals, they should have taken," it said.

San Miguel bags Ilijan power contract

Bids $870M to manage 1,200-MW gas-fed facility

By Arny R. Rane

SAN MIGUEL POWER CORP. YESTERDAY SUBMITTED THE HIGH-cost bid of $870 million for the contract to manage the 1,200-megawatt (MW) Ilijan natural gas power facility in Benguet, according to the state-owned Power Sector Assets and Liabilities Management Corp.

In a bidding held yesterday, PSALM vice chair Jose C. Benito announced that San Miguel Power (smlp) the office of Manila-based Terra Power (smlp) Inc., Terra Asia Oil and Energy Development Corp. and the Ilijan-led First Generation Group Corp. Terra Asia Oil offered the second highest bid of $894 million, while Terra Power's bid price was $833 million. First Gen Laurus submitted a bid of $594 million.

Benito, who is also writing Energy Secretary said the highest bid was the government's reserve price for the management of the Ilijan power producer administration (IPPA) contract.

He added that the cost of the IPPA contract through the government's Ilijan-PPA terms—a more competitive price away from the 75 percent government level that PSALM has to achieve is at least the government to finally implement open access and competition.

THE PREMIUM SOUGHT BY FOREIGN investors purchasing bonds issued by the Philippines narrowed in 2009 due to the country's improved economic prospects, according to data from the Singapore-based research firm Morgan Stanley & Co. Philippines, which measures the additional yield demanded by investors for buying Philippine bonds instead of comparable US securities. According to data from the firm, the yield spread on 10-year bonds at the end of 2008, closely 240 basis points from 2008 levels. Philippine spreads are now lower than the global average, the firm said.

Spreads lower than global average, BSP says other than the United States, around 274 basis points by the end of 2008. Assets under the purview of 605 local banks registered in October last year.

Monetary officials said the narrowing of spreads was mainly due to the improved outlook on the country but not the Philippines' overall creditworthiness, which was downgraded by the global economy.

of gross domestic product, grew by 10 percent last year.

Although this was a decision from the previous year, last president, officials said, the Philippines' economic recovery was not as fast as the United States and industrialized nations, such as Japan, Germany and France.

The BSP and the decline in the cost of borrowing of the Philippines government was also due to improved outlook and rating on the Philippines by credit rating firms.

Monetary officials further added the country's credit rating by a notch but not putting the Philippines par status position before investors.

Monetary officials said that the Philippines' credit rating was upgraded to "BBB" from "BBB-".

Developers laud start of computerization of land titling agency

With a streamlined process, corruption and red tape may be lessened significantly

By Charles E. Salas

SECURING THE LAND-TITLE is probably the most crucial accomplishment for any property developer for this not only legitimizes ownership for their home buyers but also allows them to collect payments so they could get back what they have invested in the said project.

Sally, such investor takes a considerable amount of time within the agency responsible for keeping all land records and through the Registry of Deeds (often nationwide) all records of transactions involving registered and unregistered lands as well as chattel mortgages affecting movable properties.

"A huge percentage of LRO's operations, most especially in the provinces are still employing tedious and inefficient manual methods. Retrieval of records takes more time and requires a number of staff to complete the process. And because records are in their paper form, they are susceptible to deterioration, loss through fire, flooding and theft and other calamities," admitted Gloria Sta. Maria, deputy administrator of Land Registrar's Office during a business meeting with the Subdivision and Housing Developers Association.

Computerization

This prompted the LRA, to begin a computerization program known as the Land-Titling Computerization Project.

Adaptive street lighting

Adaptive street lighting is defined as the category of existing lighting levels to suit activity levels.

Traditionally, street lighting levels are set through engineering design by applying minimum or fixed levels on the type of roadway and the level of pedestrian activity. The higher the level of pedestrian activity, the higher the level of lighting is recommended. Once the minimum level is established, the level of lighting for street lights is maintained throughout the hours of darkness.

The problem with this design approach is that pedestrian activity levels do not necessarily remain constant throughout the hours of darkness. In most cases the number of pedestrians is reduced late at night and in the early morning hours. This may also be the case during weekends. Adaptive street lighting reduces the lighting level during hours of reduced pedestrian activity while meeting recommended minimum pedestrian needs.

Adaptive lighting systems

Managing street lights through the use of dimming systems is recommended when traffic volume is reduced during late night and early morning hours to make considerable energy savings.

One control method to accomplish this is by using two-lamp luminaires, with one of the lamps turned off during late night and early morning hours. Another method is the single lamp luminaires installed in combination with a dimming system.

At present, many of the street lights are from gas-filled technology. They last for about 12,000 hours (less than 3 years). Light emitting diodes or LEDs, on the other hand, have an average of 50,000 hours. Their life span can extend up to 12 years. LED street lights cost more as much as additional lighting but this is compensated by its longer life span and low consumption. Coupled with a dimming system, it's bound to make considerable savings.

Adaptive lighting systems are now widely used in Manila, Singapore and in Europe because of its many benefits. By applying existing street light systems with more energy efficient models, massive energy savings are reduced, a major cause of climate change.

Lower lighting systems can extend, maintain and extend the operating status of luminaires from a remote location using a laptop or desktop computer.

In some countries, road lighting street lighting systems have achieved 60-70 percent savings. For the most a simple technical solution, they pay back period for installing adaptive lighting is about 2-3 years.

Adaptive street lighting is a highly of feature may for street cities or towns considerably.

"This program prompted the Land Registration System Inc. to start converting all land titles into digital format, thereby doing this in three pilot areas—the registries of Manila, Quezon City, Marikina City and Cebu City," Bala-Maria informed.

According to LRA Undersecretary Ronald Dela, the program will take some time as all of these need to be rechecked on land to reconfirm/verify/verify/billing of the land database, networking could be possible in all 134 offices.

Around Theor

"However, such limited in-will have a system that would at least ensure copies of land titles for just around two hours, physical records would no longer be needed as digital copies would prove to be a better alternative as they are more easily stored, accessed more easily and are no longer susceptible to theft, flooding or fire," he said.

Arnold Girones, SRRA national president, said this is a significant development since a computerized land titling system would link all levels of the LRA Central Office, the Regional Registry of Deeds and the Registrar's Office nationwide.

"This will make available to the entire organization, history and other knowledge base for making informed and intelligent decisions on land titling and registration, which plays a crucial role for us," he said.

He noted that with a streamlined process, registration and red tape may be lessened significantly.

"This is a critical stage for the LRA as they establish a more efficient system. I believe as the system evolves, it will be willing to have with them as we will be reinforced with a more secure and efficient system as well as less prone to corruption," Girones said.

GREEN ARCHITECTURE

Arnoldo de Jesus

IN ADOPTING DEVELOPING COUNTRIES, modern roadway lighting is estimated to be about 20 percent of the average metropolitan's energy consumption.

Based on this figure, it would seem that a developing country like ours would be very conscious of energy costs for street lighting. Unfortunately this is not the case.

As one of my readers says regarding my previous article on street lights, "these articles are very timely because there are a lot of those poorly designed street lights (including sodium lights, I guess by the stretch of a professional architect in the metropolis every evening on levels up and down). With the street lights they installed in that area, you need to adjust road level while driving... How I wish your published article would somehow find its way to the office of the city engineers so that necessary changes can be made."

This need not go very far in our modernized what has meant. In a short time, all kinds of street lighting devices have mushroomed in Metro Manila.

Many include luminaires or light fixtures with uplights in metal poles that are too closely spaced, creating glare and wasting energy.

Some are designed to focus up a place with multi-lumen (multiple plastic panels) but with very little illumination. Ideally, one should use only the illuminated area and not the source of light.

Some put up lights with very old fixtures that cut down lighting efficiency. Inefficient street light design wastes energy with excessive or inadequate illumination and poses a danger to motorists and pedestrians.

What Metro Manila needs is adaptive street lighting.

ADAPTIVE street lighting is defined as the concept of varying lighting levels to suit existing trends to save energy. It also includes reflecting modern lighting systems such as solar-powered street lights.

INVEST IN PROTECTING YOUR HOMES

Prevention is better than cure, particularly when it comes to termite infestation. Homes are important investments that must be protected, so termite damage can be avoided for very little to no cost. In fact, the annual cost of termite control is estimated at $100 per year, while the repair bill for termite damage caused by termites can be three to four times higher.

Jardine Distribution, Inc. is a well-known pest control and distribution company that has been in the forefront of providing a complete termite solution for homes with its Solignum products. Solignum is a natural wood preservative and termiticide. This does not require a toxic chemical solution against termites but instead uses a natural solution.

"For the past 30 years, Jardine has set the standard for termite treatment for homes in Singapore and other areas, an effective protection against termites, rodents and fungi," said Pheng Tay, Solignum Product Manager. "The household benefit comes in three varieties."

Solignum Concentrate is for areas that can still be treated with a brush, footboard and wood settings, while Solignum Brown is for wood that does not need to be removed such as beams, floors and wall frames.

Solignum Impregnate has been marketed recently as a new treatment that acts as a barrier to protect homes from subterranean termites. The product, water-based formula, is less hazardous to users and the environment, and is recommended as a preventive 10 square meters of coverage for every liter. Stop termites in Solignum.

By David S. Gandy
Executive Director

I HAVE BEEN INVITED to give the opening address at the 1997 National Conference on the Environment and the Economy, sponsored by the U.S. Council on Competitiveness and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. The conference will be held in Washington, D.C., on September 15-16, 1997. The theme of the conference is "The Environment and the Economy: Finding the Right Balance." The conference will feature a number of speakers, including Vice President Al Gore, Speaker of the House of Representatives, and several members of the President's Council of Economic Advisors. The conference will also feature a number of panels and roundtables on a variety of topics related to the environment and the economy.

The U.S. Council on Competitiveness and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce are the sponsors of the conference. The U.S. Council on Competitiveness is a non-profit organization that was created by the U.S. Chamber of Commerce in 1994. Its mission is to promote U.S. economic growth and competitiveness by identifying and addressing barriers to trade and investment. The U.S. Chamber of Commerce is the largest business organization in the United States, representing more than 100,000 businesses and organizations. Its mission is to promote the interests of the U.S. business community and to advocate for policies that will promote economic growth and competitiveness.

The conference will be a valuable opportunity for business leaders and policymakers to discuss the challenges facing the U.S. economy and the environment, and to explore ways to find the right balance between the two. I am honored to be invited to give the opening address at this important conference.

DAVID S. GANDY is Executive Director of the U.S. Council on Competitiveness and the U.S. Chamber of Commerce. He is also a member of the President's Council of Economic Advisors. Mr. Gandy has been in the U.S. Council on Competitiveness since 1994, and has been a member of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce since 1996. He has a B.S. degree in Economics from the University of California, Berkeley, and an M.B.A. degree from the University of California, Los Angeles. He has also worked for the U.S. Department of Commerce and the U.S. Trade Representative's Office.

It's a good idea to get a second opinion if you're considering a major medical procedure, says Dr. Robert M. Kaplan, a professor of medicine at the University of California, San Diego. "I think it's important to get a second opinion, especially if you're considering a major medical procedure," he says. "It's not just about the cost of the procedure, but also about the quality of the care. A second opinion can help you make a more informed decision about your health." Kaplan also notes that a second opinion can be helpful in understanding the risks and benefits of a procedure, as well as the potential for complications. "It's important to talk to your doctor about the risks and benefits of a procedure, and to ask questions if you're not sure," he says. RESEARCHER'S TAKEAWAY: The study suggests that the use of a single, standardized, and validated measure of social support may be insufficient to capture the complexity of social support in the workplace. Future research should explore the use of multiple measures to capture different aspects of social support, such as emotional support, instrumental support, and informational support.

How do these important new findings fit into 'Toby's story' and wider research on autism? We have the direct testimony of Toby himself.

The first time I saw a person with a prosthetic arm, I was struck by the ingenuity of the design. The arm was made of a lightweight material and had a flexible joint that allowed the user to move it in a natural way. I was fascinated by the way the arm was designed to look like a real arm, with a realistic skin tone and a functional grip. I was also impressed by the way the arm was attached to the user's body, with a secure and comfortable fit. I was determined to learn more about this technology and to see if I could develop a similar device for my own use.

ONE OF THE FIRST STRIPPEN KINGS, a semi-buried-owl-like figure that roared the cry of one of the two Pan Pan hermits. The story centered around an evil Indian burial ground that had mystical powers of resurrection, where dead or taken pan hermits would bury their Indian animals and have them come back to life. Of course, being a sort of King, something unusual and creepy would come back, as evidenced by a man who buried his own son in Pan Pan and had his son return as a giggling, horned, grumpy-looking toddler in women's

Viewers weigh in on reality TV

By Michael Torre

WHENEVER YOU TURN ON YOUR TV these days, chances are, a reality show will be airing. While the genre has been in existence for decades, there seems to be more and more of them on both local and foreign channels.

What are the pros and cons of this proliferation of reality TV shows? Some viewers claim what they like and don't like.

"The proliferation of reality shows is a sign of desperation and desperation. They only appeal to many because people associate themselves with the tales of adversity of the participants. They give viewers the illusion that even for people who have better jobs of home is so hard."

"The shows hold audiences, so people are made to believe that any person can make it on TV and become an instant millionaire. But, the audience pressure is really, since it gets decided by popularity votes."

Yelze

"Reality shows are not real. They're products of the vision of producers or directors who limit the reality of a show depending on the response of its audience. In the end, reality shows are manipulated, being objectively in discovery, yes, but, ultimately dishonest, money chief."

"In reality shows, viewers are so-called reality and real emotions, so that's a good thing. But, it's not good when the camera is lying, exaggerating, or lying manipulation of truth or propaganda. My intention is to bring

My summer adventure at SM

Kids can enjoy summer fun right in the mall in the SM Department Store's Children's Wear Department My Summer Adventure activities. This starts on April 24 at the SM Megamall Events Center, and then proceeds to the SM City Cebu, Northwing on May 15, and the SM City Clark Events Center on May 23.

They can enjoy a day of fun - paddling in the arts, and learning more about fashion by simply shopping at SM's Children's Wear Department. Simply show your receipt and your kids can join in the fun.

They can get creative at the Basic Art Workshop from Crafts and the Arts and Crafts Workshop from Hallowmark, both in partnership with SM Department Store.

and get styled at the Massimo Boutique from 4:22 and the Hair Massimo Boutique from Nature Organics in partnership with Watsons. Best of all, they can have souvenir pics at the Photo Booth.

Little fashionistas will also be treated to a Fashion Show, and learn all about SM's summer fashion looks - going from fashion in My Sailing Journey, enjoying fun in the sun in My Summer Beach, to, and wearing the look of the whimsical Ballet Slippers Showtime at 8PM.

My Summer Adventure is brought to you by the Children's Wear Department of the SM Department Store.

The Green Thing. Printed in green with olive cargo shorts.

Bahamas Breeze. Pretty floral-printed dresses in vibrant colors.

Beach Breeze. Pretty pink and green with fun, colorful geometric print accents on the sleeves and bottom, and navy yellow and navy blue tank top with a long-sleeved top.

Get out, and this and match the clothes of your choice to complete your Summer Adventure look.

Anchor Away. Sail into summer fun in a sailor-inspired blue and white striped top paired with navy cargo shorts.

Nautical and chic. White-colored tank top with pocket, watch design worn with checked blue and white cargo shorts with button detailing.
